NASA Family Assistance Fund created for Agency employees

NASA Administrator Sean O'Keefe has announced the formation of the NASA Family Assistance Fund in response to requests to support the families of the STS-107 crew and other NASA families during times of need. Formed in cooperation with the Federal Employee Education and Assistance Fund, the NASA Family Assistance Fund will provide need-based financial and educational assistance to families of the seven Columbia astronauts who died Feb. 1, as well as to other families of NASA personnel who die as the result of official duties. For more information, see "Inside Marshall."

Thrift Savings Plan open season closes June 30. For details, see 'Inside Marshall'
